

Instructors are always available through online or in-person office hours to consult with students throughout each course.

Online Courses

In an online course, instructors post course material such as lectures, presentations, notes and readings in Canvas, which is FSCJ's online learning system, through myFSCJ. Students in online courses are responsible for spending time learning the material, completing exercises and submitting work according to a schedule that the instructor determines. Instructors interact with students through posts and emails, but do not meet the class as a group during designated times.

Classes converted to this format will show "Online - All activities online" in the room location of your schedule, with no day or time listed.

Class Notes: Orientation, coursework and testing online. Access this course in Canvas through myFSCJ.

Live Online Courses

In live online courses, the instructor meets the class as a group in Canvas, through myFSCJ, at regular, designated days and times. Students are expected to spend time studying the material, completing exercises and submitting work. These activities are accompanied by scheduled online class meetings in which the instructor presents material, facilitates class discussions and activities, and works with students in groups. You must be available for scheduled class meetings, just as you would for in-person classes. Instructors may meet the class online during all designated days and times, or use only some of them, but all class meetings will occur on the day(s) of the week and time you see on your schedule.

Classes in this format will be displayed as "Online - All activities online" in the room location of your schedule, with specific days and times listed.

Notes

Class Notes: This course contains online components and/or online class meetings on the scheduled days and times.

Face-to-Face Courses

Students in face-to-face courses meet as a group at an FSCJ campus or center during specified meeting times throughout the term. Students are expected to spend time studying the material, completing exercises and submitting work. These activities are supported by on-site class meetings where the instructor may present material, facilitate class discussions and activities, and work with students in groups. Face-to-face courses meet throughout the term on designated days and times, so you must be available to meet in person during those class meetings.

When looking at your schedule, face-to-face courses will have designated locations, assigned days and times.

For Fall 2020, FSCJ's face-to-face course offerings will be limited to those courses that require substantial regular on-site activity in order to master course content.

Hybrid Courses

Hybrid courses are delivered through a combination of a face-to-face and online instruction. In a hybrid course, the class will sometimes meet on-site at an FSCJ location for face-to-face meetings, and students will also spend individual time learning material not covered in class meetings, completing exercises and submitting work according to a schedule that the instructor determines. Because the class meets on the designated days and times you see on the schedule, you must be sure that you can be available for those class meetings.

Classes in this format will have assigned days and times with a meeting place listed on your schedule.

For Fall 2020, FSCJ's hybrid course offerings will be limited to those courses that require some regular on-site activity in order to master course content.

Notes

Class Notes: This is a hybrid section of this course and is a blend of online and on-campus instruction. The class will meet on campus the days noted on the myFSCJ schedule. The remainder of the class is online and must be accessed in Canvas through myFSCJ. Student must have stable internet access.
